SHOCKING SECRET IN A PORN MERCHANT'S LOCKER

By BRIAN CROWTHER

AN evil child porn racket operated by company boss Herman Spielman was uncovered by a sheer fluke.

One of his workers opened a cupboard—and a secret hoard of sordid photographs tumbled out.

When police were tipped off they smashed a sinister empire that was piling up huge profits for 57-year-old Spielman.

The innocent little girls he enticed into his web called him "Doctor John." He doled out chocolates, sweets and money as he taught them to pose for obscene pictures that were sold worldwide.

Some of his "little Lolitas" were trained in degrading sex acts, then hired out to wealthy perverts who lust after children.

The reckoning came for Spielman at Manchester Crown Court yesterday. He got a six-year sentence after admitting indecency charges.

Also jailed was 39-year-old Victoria Hughes, who sold her two daughters—aged six and ten—for sex.

Hughes, of Delft Walk, Salford, Lancs, got a four-year sentence.

Denial

She had denied the charges, claiming that when she introduced her little girls to Spielman she did not realise he was a porn merchant.

But Mr. Justice Forbes told her: "It is very difficult to imagine a worse case of indecent assault on a small girl than one in which a mother provides her own child for that purpose."

Spielman, whose home is in Stanley Road, Salford, belongs to a strict Jewish sect. He prayed every day at a synagogue.

He is the father of six children, and told detectives at one stage: "I am a good family man. I love children."

But the man who found that tell-tale bundle of photographs, 34-year-old Denis Rogers, said: "Some of the children in them looked ab-

"There were little girls hardly out of the nappy stage."

Spielman's normal feelings for children ended at his own front door.

THE WORLDWIDE TRAIL OF VICE

By SIDNEY WILLIAMS

HERMAN SPIELMAN was part of an international network of child vice.

His sordid role became clear after the Los Angeles arrest of Eric Cross, the man exposed by the Mirror earlier this year as the sex pervert with children for sale.

American police questioned Cross for several days before he broke down and spoke about Spielman, the man he knew as Fred Watling, boss of the Watling Press in Manchester's Corporation Street.

Detectives uncovered a network of child prostitution spreading through Britain, Europe, America and the Far East. They learned how Spielman drove "customers" round Manchester to meet girls aged six, 11 and 12 for sex.

The price, said Cross, was not cheap. Spielman wanted $80 per child.

The Mirror has in its possession a letter from Cross in which he refers a client to Spielman.

"You can refer to me," wrote Cross. "It is not cheap however, so I am not sure if this would pay since you have enough dolls to play with."

Cross also gave police a dossier of British mothers who could be willing to make their children available to the vice network.

GUILTY: Herman Spielman — known to little girls as Doctor John. He built an empire of child porn.
